Assembly Required: Team Building in Your Workplace

What is it about?

Using creative techniques including visual arts, drama, storytelling and music, participants will explore their own strengths and weakness within a safe environment, developing a sense of self and an understanding of their role within a team environment. Participants will be co-constructors of the training, developing their own leadership skills alongside the components needed for strong and successful teamwork.

This course is an exploration of the issues surrounding team dynamics, interactions, communications and roles and responsibilities. Through a series of physical and mental activities participants will explore all aspects relating to developing the capacity, outputs and effectiveness of their organisation.

What will I get out of it?

- A better understanding of how to lead a team.
- Develop the interpersonal skills required to work coherently as a member of an organisation.
- Develop both a theoretical and practical understanding of roles and responsibilities within teams.
