TITLE: Introduction to Higher Education

What is the course about?

Higher education develops qualities that are valued by employers, such as problem-solving and communication skills. Doing a higher education course could give you an edge in the job market: forecasts predict that half of positions that become vacant between 2004 and 2020 will be in areas of work most likely to demand graduates. And on average, people with a higher education qualification tend to earn more over their working life than those without.

Objectives of the Course:

- To provide accurate and relevant funding information
- To support participants in sourcing financial support for their ideas
- To look at the breadth of activities for which funding can be found
- To allow for the creative development of participants ideas
- To offer the creative and business experiences of Future Creative's Creative Practitioners
- To support the sustainable growth of a wide range of projects
